GRIFF PREDICTS A CLEAN SWEEP

The "Old Fox" Thinks He Will Win All Four Games From the Red Sox.

BOEHLING TO PITCH IN TODAY'S CONTEST

And Johnson Will Be Relied Upon Tomorrow—Williams' Hit Scores Winning Runs.

BY J. ED GRILLO.

Special Dispatch to The Star.

BOSTON, July 2.—A clean sweep of the series here is what Clark Griffith is predicting. With Wood and Bedient, the Red Sox at home, but one the out of the way, and Joe Boehling and Walter Johnson still in reserve for the Nationals, Griffith does not expect to experience any difficulty winning the two remaining games here. A clean sweep here, he hopes to continue with victories over Frank Chance's New York team, and, in fact, the head of the Washington aggregation has visions of another long winning streak. The sudden revival of batting eyes in the ranks has made a wonderful difference to the team. It now looks like the team which made such a game battle in the last campaign. All it seems to need is a chance to get away from home in order to play high-grade base ball. There is no more comparison in the work of the Nationals at home and on the road than there is between night and day.

There is something languid and listless about their play, but one the road they display real interest and an abundance of spirit. A continuation of the pace the Nationals have shown in the two games here is what Griffith is predicting. The winning of the world's series last year forced him to raise all his players, so that he now possesses the largest staff of any club in either league. It was all right to pay these prices while the players were delivering the goods, but now that they are apparently regarded to finish down in the race they will have to stand a cut. McAleer intends to accompany the White Sox and Giants on their world trip, and before leaving on that journey he proposes to send out all his contracts with the exception of those made, and then let the players spend the winter thinking about it while he is absent. There is no more popular man in the circuit than the Nationals are here, and Walter Johnson is actually idolized by the local fans, and he himself never by presents himself in the field.

The Nationals are getting quite a reputation for being finishers here in Boston. During several seasons they have come from behind and beat out the local champions, and they are actually being heralded in the closing innings of a game, even though Boston has a comfortable lead. The past two games have been won by the Nationals, and on other occasions this season the visitors have come from behind and beaten the Sox to victory. There is no more popular team in the circuit than the Nationals are here, and Walter Johnson is actually idolized by the local fans, and he himself never by presents himself in the field.

Joe Boehling will most likely do the pitching today, while Ray Collins is apt to be his opponent. Johnson will work the final game on Thursday.

Twenty-two hits in two games is going down with the stick, and is the best batting form that the Nationals have shown at any time this season. The team is not only hitting hard, but it is getting its hits when they are most needed. Yesterday things did not break well for them during the closing innings of the game, which would have driven Bedient from the rubber, had they gone some farther. The Nationals are getting a lead of a few runs no longer seems to discourage Griffith's team, and even though they have not got to going right until the home team had what appeared to be a winning lead, they stuck to their sticks and work and forgo to the front.

Griffith used nearly all the players he had available in the game. Both of the Cubans broke into the line-up, Acosta playing left during the closing innings, and Calvo running for Moeller, after the latter had doubled in the fifth and helped the rally which put the Nationals within striking distance of the lead in the ninth. Gordon, too, got into the game, while Williams and Henry did the catching and McGraw, who is being used as a pinch runner, Laporate also got up to bat once.

Moeller was forced out of the game in the fifth. He hit for two bases in this inning, and as his Charley horse bothered him, Calvo ran for him and scored on Foster's clean hit. It is not believed that Moeller will be out of the line-up very long, as he is started now, for since leaving home he has started to show his old form.

Ray Morgan was the only one of the regulars not to break into the base-hitting in the game, though he is showing much of his old-time speed in the field. There is not the slightest doubt that Foster's absence proved a great handicap to the team during the early weeks of the season and now that he is back in form the chances are that the team will make a much better showing during the rest of the season than it did early in the campaign.

Harry Harper, the Hackensack left-hander, is receiving a careful course of instruction in pitching. Both Griffith and Nick Altrock, two veterans at the art, have taken the young man in hand, and he is proving a very apt pupil. Before each game Griffith lets Harper pitch to him, while Nick stands out with the pitcher and Williams catches. The youngster is showing much more speed than he did when he received his first trial, and, incidentally, he appears to have per-

GIANTS, PHILLIES AND DODGERS BIG PAYERS

NEW YORK, July 2.—Only three National League clubs, the Giants, Phillies and Phillies, are paying big money this season. Reports from the west indicate a marked falling off in gate receipts in Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Chicago. The poor work of the Pirates has caused a slump in the Smoky city, which is a hardship for visiting clubs. The turnstiles in St. Louis are growing rusty, while small crowds are paying to see the Reds at home. The Cubs haven't drawn as well as in former years, for various reasons. The Boston Nationals will make more money this year than at any time since they were owned by Soden, Billings and Conant.

concerned and will not find it an easy matter to finish among the first four.

McAleer is of the opinion that it would be wise for Stahl to start experimenting even this early. He realizes that if he does not build up an entirely new pitching staff if he hopes to have any chance in the future of winning the series, he must start working the several recruit twirlers he has on hand, for they cannot possibly do worse than the veterans.

McAleer, by the way, expects to do a lot of cutting of salaries this winter. The winning of the world's series last year forced him to raise all his players, so that he now possesses the largest staff of any club in either league. It was all right to pay these prices while the players were delivering the goods, but now that they are apparently regarded to finish down in the race they will have to stand a cut. Before each game Griffith lets Harper pitch to him, while Nick stands out with the pitcher and Williams catches. The youngster is showing much more speed than he did when he received his first trial, and, incidentally, he appears to have perfect control. Griffith is sure to work him in one of the opening round Hooper hit for three bases, after Yerkes had been retired, and scored when Speaker drove a long fly to right. After that Engel held them in check until the fourth inning, when things began to break badly for him. He got rid of Lewis to start with, but walked Gardner. Engl came through with a two-bagger, sending Gardner to third, and then Wagner popped up a little fly over Gandil's head, which the strong wind carried away from him, and he went for a two-bagger, Gardner scoring. Carrigan up, Bedient hit, and after Bedient had struck out Hooper drove out a hit, which scored the other two runs. Speaker, however, forced Hooper and ended the round. It was in the first half of this inning that the Nationals scored their first run on Foster's single and Gandil's double.

They drove Bedient from the rubber in the fifth when Miller hit a double, a double, Henry and Williams, the latter being sent to bat for Engel, struck out, however. Miller followed with another, and with a double, Calvo running for him, and Foster sent him home with a hit. Miller followed with another, and Gandil was purposely walked, filling the bases. Morgan, however, forced Gandil, ending the rally.

So the score stood 4 to 3 for the next three innings, but in the ninth the first works began to show. Shanks beat out an infield hit and took second on Leonard's throw to first. McBride worked himself for a pass and Schaefer's hit, which was thrown to third too late by Leonard to get Shanks, so the bases were full when Williams drove in the winning run, though Boston got a man on in its half of the final inning, a double play by McBride, Morgan and Gandil, killed its chance. The score:

Chance Protests Game.

NEW YORK, July 2.—Frank Chance protested yesterday's game, which Philadelphia won from New York, 2 to 1, the New York manager basing his protest on Umpire Dineen's ruling in the fourth inning, when he sent Borton back to bat after he had made a scratch hit in six innings and retired in favor of Scott after the Tigers found him for four of the seven in the sixth period.

Willett, on the mound for Detroit, pitched an excellent game, though he was unfortunate in the pitcher score. Chicago..... 0 0 2 0 0 1 0-3 Detroit..... 0 0 0 0 0 2 0-2

Three-base hits—Bash, Gump, Lord 2; Stolen bases—Bash, Moriarty, Rath. Left on base—Chicago, 3; Detroit, 1. First base on balls—Of Willett, 3; of Scott, 1. Hit by pitched ball—1; first base struck out—By Scott, 2; Duplessis—Moses, Evans and Sheridan.

Bill Carrigan and Billy Sullivan, the veteran White Sox catches, can do more quiet and effective kidding of batsmen than most any one in base ball. The best of it is that they rarely make their victims sore.

AMERICAN GOLFERS LOSE.

Frenchmen Win in All of the Four Single Matches.

LE BOULLE, France, July 2.—France yesterday won the international golf match between teams of professional representing France and the United States. The Frenchmen beat the American players in all of the four single matches, thus, with Monday's two wins in four-ball game, scoring six out of the possible six points.

Arnaud Mauser beat Tom McNamara, the Metropolitan open title holder, by 2 up and 1 to play. Louis Teller beat Alec Smith of Wykagyl, the American captain, by 5 up and 4 to play. Jena Gassia beat Michael J. Brady of Wollaston, by 5 up and 3 to play. Pierre Lafitte beat John J. McDermott, United States national champion, by 5 up and 2 to play.

McDermott was the only American player leading at the end of the morning round by two holes. Smith being 4 down and the others 3 down.

McDermott's play, especially his putting, fell off during the afternoon. McNamara took the lead for the first time at the eleventh hole in the afternoon round, but was unable to hold his position.

The Americans expressed criticism of the Le Boulle course and of the fact that no arrangements had been made to penalize erratic play. They say that for this reason the straight shots, which were a feature of the American game, counted for practically nothing in these matches.

Snodgrass has been killing the ball since restored to a regular berth. He has hit safely in every one of the games in the west, and for that period is batting well over .400.
